1. Purpose

Provides operational guidance for common HR processes and employee support, including employee records, onboarding, grievances, recruitment coordination, and policy interpretation.

2. Employee Records

HR maintains authorized employee records such as employment information, leave records, attendance records, performance records, and relevant documents according to the applicable retention process.

3. Onboarding

New employees complete required documentation, policy acknowledgements, access requests, orientation, and role-specific onboarding activities.

4. Probation

Where a probation period applies, managers review role fit, performance, conduct, attendance, and progress against expectations before the probation decision.

5. Leave and Attendance Support

HR assists with leave eligibility questions, attendance corrections, policy interpretation, and escalations while employees remain responsible for timely submissions.

6. Recruitment Support

HR coordinates requisitions, candidate records, interview workflows, assessment documentation, offers, and onboarding handoff.

7. Grievances

Employees may raise workplace concerns through their manager, HR, or an approved escalation channel. Concerns should be handled respectfully and as confidentially as practical.

8. Workplace Investigations

HR may coordinate fact-finding for complaints or policy concerns. Participants are expected to provide truthful information and maintain appropriate confidentiality.

9. Employee Data Privacy

Employee and candidate information must be accessed and processed only for legitimate business purposes by authorized personnel.

10. Policy Interpretation

Where a policy question is unclear, HR should review the applicable document, employment terms, and relevant requirements before providing guidance.

11. Separation and Exit

Exit procedures may include notice management, handover, asset return, access closure, final documentation, and exit feedback.

12. HR Service Levels

HR teams should acknowledge employee requests within the organization's defined service window and provide status updates for requests requiring additional review.

13. Escalation Matrix

Urgent safety, security, harassment, retaliation, payroll-critical, or legally sensitive matters should be escalated promptly through the designated HR or management channel.

14. Record Accuracy

HR records should be updated from source documents or authorized system entries. Staff must not fabricate, infer, or alter material employee information without authorization.
