1. Purpose

Defines a fair, structured, evidence-based hiring process from workforce request through candidate selection and onboarding handoff.

2. Workforce Requisition

Hiring managers submit an approved requisition describing role title, department, employment type, location/work arrangement, required competencies, experience expectations, and approved headcount.

3. Job Description Standards

Job descriptions should distinguish mandatory qualifications from preferred qualifications and should use role-relevant, measurable criteria.

4. Candidate Sourcing

Candidates may be sourced through careers pages, employee referrals, approved recruitment partners, campus programs, professional networks, and other authorized channels.

5. Resume Screening

Recruiters review submitted information against documented role criteria. Missing information must be recorded as not provided rather than inferred.

6. Candidate Assessment

Assessment may include aptitude, technical knowledge, coding, case studies, portfolio/project review, communication, and role-specific exercises.

7. Interview Process

A typical process may include recruiter screening, technical assessment, project/technical interview, and final HR interview. The hiring team may adjust stages based on role requirements.

8. Evidence-Based Evaluation

Certificates, projects, experience, portfolios, GitHub activity, LinkedIn information, and coding profiles may be considered when relevant and verifiable. Quantity alone must not determine suitability.

9. Fair Hiring

Selection decisions must be based on job-related qualifications and evidence. Protected or sensitive personal characteristics must not be used as qualification criteria.

10. Candidate Decision

Each candidate receives an evaluation outcome such as Advance, Review, Hold, or Not Selected, supported by documented reasons and role-specific evidence.

11. Background and Verification

Where required, employment, education, identity, or other job-relevant verification follows the applicable company process and candidate consent requirements.

12. Offer and Onboarding Handoff

Selected candidates move to offer and onboarding procedures after required approvals. Recruitment records should be retained according to the applicable records policy.

13. Exceptions and Escalation

Exceptions to the standard hiring workflow require hiring-manager and HR approval. Questions about selection criteria should be escalated to HR.
