1. Purpose

Provides a controlled framework for approved remote work while maintaining productivity, information security, collaboration, and attendance expectations.

2. Eligibility

WFH eligibility depends on role suitability, business needs, manager approval, performance expectations, and applicable employment arrangements.

3. Approval

Employees must obtain approval through the designated workflow before treating a workday as WFH unless an emergency arrangement has been authorized.

4. Working Hours and Availability

Approved remote employees follow their assigned working hours, remain reachable through approved channels, attend scheduled meetings, and communicate delays or outages.

5. Attendance

WFH employees must record attendance using the approved system. Remote work does not remove attendance or leave requirements.

6. Work Environment

Employees should maintain a reasonably private, safe, and interruption-minimized workspace appropriate for their duties.

7. Information Security

Company information must be accessed only through approved devices, accounts, networks, and applications. Employees must follow password, MFA, device-locking, and data-handling requirements.

8. Confidentiality

Confidential documents and conversations must not be exposed to unauthorized persons in the home or public environment.

9. Equipment

Company-issued equipment remains company property. Loss, theft, damage, or suspected compromise must be reported promptly.

10. Productivity and Performance

Employees are accountable for agreed deliverables, deadlines, quality standards, and communication regardless of work location.

11. Internet and Power Issues

Employees should maintain reasonable connectivity and promptly notify the manager if technical issues materially affect work.

12. Exceptions

Temporary emergency WFH arrangements may be granted based on business continuity or employee circumstances and should be documented.
